

Discontinuation periods for asylum support

24th August 2023

As a general principle, the Home Office should give people notice that their support is going to stop so they can plan what they will do next¹. On 1st August 2023, the Home Office announced a change in procedure for the discontinuation of asylum support for people who have received a decision on their asylum claim. Previously, individuals would be given either 28 or 21 days' notice that their support was going to end. Under the new policy, in practice most people will probably only ever get 7 days' notice.

This briefing note explains the law around cessation of support and outlines the different notice periods depending on the circumstances. References to a person should be read as including any dependants included in their grant of support.

1. Section 95 (s95) support, following an asylum decision

1.1 The law

The legal powers to provide and stop s95 support are governed by the following statutory provisions

Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 (IAA99)

Ss95(1)

The Secretary of State may provide, or arrange for the provision of, support for

- (a) asylum-seekers, or*
- (b) dependants of asylum-seekers,*

who appear to the Secretary of State to be destitute or to be likely to become destitute within such period as may be prescribed.

s94(1)

"asylum-seeker" means a person who is not under 18 and has made a claim for asylum which has been recorded by the Secretary of State but which has not been determined;"

s94(3)

For the purposes of this Part, a claim for asylum is determined at the end of such period beginning—

- (a) on the day on which the Secretary of State notifies the claimant of his decision on the claim, or*
- (b) if the claimant has appealed against the Secretary of State's decision, on the day on which the appeal is disposed of, as may be prescribed.*

s94(4)

An appeal is disposed of when it is no longer pending for the purposes of the Immigration Act or the Special Immigration Appeals Commission Act 1997

Asylum Support Regulations 2000 (AS Regs 2000)

Reg 2(2)

The period prescribed under s94(3) of the Act (day on which a claim for asylum is determined) for the purposes of Part VI of the Act is 28 days where paragraph (2A) applies, and 21 days in any other case.

Reg 2(2A)

This paragraph applies where:

- (a) the Secretary of State notifies the claimant that his decision is to accept the asylum claim;*
- (b) the Secretary of State notifies the claimant that his decision is to reject the asylum claim but at the same time notifies him that he is giving him limited leave to enter or remain in the United Kingdom; or*
- (c) an appeal by the claimant against the Secretary of State's decision has been disposed of by being allowed.*

Reg 22

(1) If—

- (a) as a result of asylum support, a person has a tenancy or licence to occupy accommodation,*
- (b) one or more of the conditions mentioned in paragraph (2) is satisfied, and*
- (c) he is given notice to quit in accordance with paragraph (3) or (4),* his tenancy or licence is to be treated as ending with the period specified in that notice, regardless of when it could otherwise be brought to an end.

(2) The conditions are that—

- (a) the asylum support is suspended or discontinued as a result of any provision of regulation 20;*
- (b) the relevant claim for asylum has been determined;*
- (c) the supported person has ceased to be destitute; or*
- (d) he has moved to other accommodation.*

(3) A notice to quit is in accordance with this paragraph if it is in writing and—

- (a) in a case where sub-paragraph (a), (c) or (d) of paragraph (2) applies, specifies as the notice period a period of not less than seven days; or*
- (b) in a case where the Secretary of State has notified his decision on the relevant claim for asylum to the claimant, specifies as the notice period a period at least as long as whichever is the greater of—*
 - (i) seven days; or*

(ii) the period beginning with the date of service of the notice to quit and ending with the date of determination of the relevant claim for asylum (found in accordance with section 94(3) of the Act).

(4) A notice to quit is in accordance with this paragraph if—

- (a) it is in writing;*
- (b) it specifies as the notice period a period of less than seven days; and*
- (c) the circumstances of the case are such that that notice period is justified.*

1.2 Summary of the legal position

A person remains entitled to s95 support whilst they are a destitute asylum seeker (s95(1) IAA99). They will cease being an asylum seeker when their asylum claim is “determined” (s94(1) IAA99). A claim is only determined at the end of the period specified in the AS Regs 2000 (s94(3) IAA99). The periods are: (i) 28 days where a person has been granted leave; and (ii) 21 days in other cases (regs 2(2) and 2(2A) AS Regs 2000). If a person lives with a child(ren) (who is dependant on them) when they are refused leave, their support will continue (s94(5) IAA99, but see also ASAP’s September 2022 briefing on support for families).

1.3 Grant of leave

When a person has been granted leave, the 28 days’ notice period begins on the day on which the Home Office “notifies the claimant of his decision on the claim” (s94(3) IAA99). Reg 2(2A) explains that the 28 days apply to cases where the Home Office has accepted the asylum claim², has rejected the asylum claim but granted limited leave to remain or where the person has won an appeal.

When a person is granted leave they will receive a decision letter from the Home Office telling them that a positive asylum (or other) decision has been made. Notice must be in writing and if sent by post, will be deemed served 2 days after it was posted (ss94(8) and (9) IAA99). This letter does not constitute proof of status. This comes later in form of a Biometric Residence Permit (BRP).

In most cases, biometric information is taken from applicants in the early days of their asylum claim so the BRP is issued automatically. We understand this process currently takes at least 2 weeks. The BRP also includes a National Insurance Number (NINO). If the BRP is not automatically issued, the person will need to attend a biometrics appointment at the Home Office, further delaying receipt of the BRP.

² An asylum claim in this context is a claim under the Refugee Convention claim or Article 3 of the European Human Rights Convention (s94(1) IAA99)

Once the BRP has been issued, the Home Office will then issue a discontinuation letter which is sent by post. The accommodation provider is also instructed to issue a notice to quit (NTQ), usually served by hand. Both should stipulate a date by which they must leave the accommodation and support will end. The discontinuation letter also explains the reason that the support has been stopped and contains other information. This process has not changed, however we are aware that people do not always receive the discontinuation letter. Copies of these can be requested via Migrant Help (CopySupportDecisions@migranthehelpuk.org).

Prior to 1st August 2023, the Home Office treated the service of the BRP as notice of a decision on the claim, so the 28 days would start from then³. If there were delays in issuing the BRP, support would usually be extended until this had happened. More recently, as there has been increased chaos in the asylum system, that timetable slipped further. The government has previously recognised that, in practice, a person will need a BRP and NINO in order to easily access benefits, apply for a job, open a bank account and find housing⁴.

Under the new system, the Home Office is treating the (earlier) service of the asylum decision letter as notice of a decision on the claim. However, they will not issue the discontinuation letter or NTQ until they have sent the BRP. The notice period will be whatever remains of the 28 days. But if more than 21 days have passed since the service of the asylum decision letter, the person will only ever get 7 days' notice. Accommodation and financial support will cease on the same day.

The 7 days' notice comes from reg 22 AS Regs 2000. This is the minimum notice period which normally applies for ceasing a person's accommodation under s95 support.

1.4 Refusal of the asylum claim, and no other leave granted.

When a person's asylum claim is refused and the Home Office is not going to grant them another type of leave, they get 21 days' notice which starts to run from the day on which the Home Office notifies the claimant of that decision (s94(3) IAA99), or, if the person has lodged an asylum appeal, the day they become appeals rights exhausted (ie the appeal (or onward an appeal) has been dismissed and they have run out of time to lodge further appeals (s94(3) and (4) IAA99⁵)).

1.5 Challenging a discontinuation of support

The Home Office has explained that in positive grant cases, support will be extended (at least twice, in 7-day increments) until the BRP is issued. However, a person can also request an extension of support by contacting Migrant Help and using the usual escalation routes.

It may also be possible to appeal a decision to discontinue support.

Home Office asylum decision letters and support discontinuation letters stipulate that there is no right of appeal in these situations. This is not necessarily true. s103 IAA99 governs the right of appeal. s103(2) provides that a person can appeal a s95 discontinuation if the Home Office stop support “before [it] would otherwise come to an end”.

We are aware, particularly in cases where a person has been refused asylum, that the Home Office makes mistakes. People may still have ongoing appeals, people may also not have received notice of a decision on their claims. These may all be grounds for appeal. Please call our advice line for further information on particular cases and/or look at our website which contains more information⁶.

The Home Office decision letter must be attached to the notice of appeal in order for the appeal to be valid. However, conscious of the long-standing issues with service of letters, the Asylum Support Tribunal (AST) has adopted a practice of accepting NTQs in lieu, if the Grounds of Appeal confirm that no decision letter has been received. See ASAP’s guide to appealing for more information on how to lodge an appeal.

2. s95 support, other kinds of discontinuations

s95 support may stop for a variety of reasons, other than because their asylum claim has been determined. The person may (this is not a definitive list):

- no longer be destitute;
- be appeals rights exhausted and have children who are now all at least 18;
- have been granted limited leave to remain outside of the asylum application system (this is most obviously the case for people who have been granted leave under trafficking/modern slavery rules);
- have breached the conditions of their support (this would include cases where the person has abandoned their asylum support accommodation);
- failed to travel when requested to by the Home Office; or
- withdrawn their asylum claim or had their claim treated as withdrawn.

The varying notice periods given by the Home Office in these circumstances are not governed by legislation, save for the minimum requirement that they be given 7 days’ notice in reg 22 AS Regs 2000. Published Home Office policies do however specify different notice periods in some of these circumstances. These have been summarised in the table below.

⁶ Resource Library - Resource library - ASAP \(asaproject.org\)

Right of appeal: whether or not there is a right of appeal against this kind of discontinuation of support will depend on the facts. As a general rule, there will be a right of appeal if the person thinks the Home Office has made a mistake and they are still either destitute or an asylum seeker. There is a right of appeal in breach of conditions cases. All the examples above could, depending on the facts, generate a right of appeal. If you are unsure, please call our advice line.

3. Section 98 (s98) support

A destitute asylum seeker who it appears may be destitute can obtain temporary support under s98 IAA99. This provides them with support pending a decision on their s95 application. There are no statutory provisions governing the cessation of s98 support so this is entirely a matter of policy. The table below outlines the different provisions in written policy.

The general position is that there is no notice period for stopping s98 support. People can be given as little as 1 day's notice. However, in practice, the Home Office will usually give a bit more notice, particularly where the person is vulnerable. Where there are children in the household, the Home Office should liaise with social services before stopping support⁷. Home Office practice is to allow the person to remain in s98 support pending an appeal of the s95 refusal.

Right of appeal: there is no right of appeal against the termination of s98 support. The only remedy is Judicial Review.

4. Section 4 (s4) support

The situation in s4 cases is much simpler than with s95 or s98. As with s98, there are no relevant statutory provisions relating to the discontinuation of s4 support, so this area is entirely governed by policy. The relevant policy document is Section 4\(2\) policy and process.docx \(publishing.service.gov.uk\). Reference to the relevant sections of the policy are in the table below.

In the case of a grant of leave, support should continue for 28 days after the notification of the decision. In practice we would anticipate exactly the same processes (and challenges) as those now encountered in s95 cases. In all other situations, the notice period is 14 days.

The s4 discontinuation process builds in a review period. Reviews are supposed to take place at least every 3 months. However, we know that in practice (and particularly in the current situation) reviews happen much more infrequently. The Home Office does not always write to the supported person as part of that review process. But if they do, they will be given a short period of time to reply. If support is discontinued they will get a discontinuation letter 14 days from this date (plus 2 days for postage). The accommodation provider is also instructed to serve an NTQ giving the person no less than 7 days to vacate the premises.

Right of appeal: there is always a right of appeal in s4 discontinuation cases (s103(2A) IAA99). Home Office policy is to extend the provision of support pending an appeal, as long as the appeal was submitted before the end of the 14 days' notice period. There may not be grounds for appealing though. If you are unsure, please call our advice line.
